The Cain Drug Store, of McBee, was sold at a bankrupt sale Monday. Dr. J. B. Kennington, of Pageland, bought the store and will operate the store as J. B. Kennington, Druggist. He will welcome his many friends there.

Our little friend DeWitt Hurst of Ruby, wrote us a nice little letter for "Children's Corner," but we are sorry it came too late for our issue it was intended for. We want the children to take an interest in their section of The Journal. So come on children!

Sunday night or early Monday morning a light snow fell here. This is the first of the season. By daylight it was only seen on trash or other material. Monday night a heavier fall came and Tuesday morning the ground was about covered.

Our cash in advance for subscriptions is purely a business proposition and we ask all to look at it as such. We can give you a better paper by having this rule than otherwise. It is no reflection on your honesty at all for our best and most trusted business men pay cash in advance. We make this statement because a few seem to think it is because we mistrust them. Not at all.

Last Call

As we have repeatedly said we desire to keep all our old subscribers and get all the new ones we can. We desire each person to have the paper who wants it but those who do not want it we do not insist on sending it to them.

Now we, due to hard times, laid aside our cash in advance rule in cases of old subscribers in order to get them to renew. Many did so and a few have not so far, although we have waited on them from one to six months. Now, however, much we hate to part with our friends, we must do so if the matter is not arranged for right away. So if by our next issue, Dec. 6, the matter is not arranged we will correct our mailing list up to date. We can not let it go uncorrected for a longer time. So come up and arrange for your renewal.

Chesterfield Road May Not be Built

Highway department officials and the traveling public are much interested in the effort of Chesterfield county road authorities and the county delegation to arrange a plan to finance the county's part of the program to complete the Washington-Atlanta highway through Chesterfield. The state department has already allotted federal aid in the amount of $50,000 to the project and if Chesterfield county fails to meet this sum, as has been promised, officials, it is said, will be greatly disappointed. The section in Chesterfield is an important link and at present is in bad repair, so much so that traffic is detouring around the road. An agreement was reached some time ago whereby the county was to arrange for the completion of the work, but Saturday it was learned that plans have not carried so smoothly. The highway department is ready to proceed with the work, it was announced. Chesterfield authorities are to confer over the situation today and some plan may be agreed upon whereby the construction will be begun at an early date.
